

Barrow Cleft and Craniofacial Center

Sarah Woolworth, 22, has been a patient at the Barrow Cleft and Craniofacial Center since birth. Just like the main character in the best-selling novel Wonder, Sarah was born with Treacher Collins Syndrome. She's had more doctors' appointments than she can count, including four major surgeries, and more than a dozen minor surgeries.

A college student who volunteers at Barrow to help teach about the book and is studying to become a teacher, Sarah says, "There's nothing more normal than being different, which is a good thing. If we were all the same, the world would be boring."
